Title of Project: A systematic review of Patient injury compensation cases in the field of ophthalmology in Norway over the last five years

Purpose: We all know errors and injury occurs in our health systems. The purpose is to study and identify claims in relation to error or injury. Can we find common denominators to learn from?

Methods: The Norwegian System of Patient Injury Compensation (NPE) is a government agency subject to the Norwegian Ministry of Health and Care Services. They handle compensation claims from patients who think they may have gotten an injury from an error or omission in the health care treatment. Each year they compile statistical data. I will study this data and compromise a presentation that will include some common denominators of interest and learning.
