

Mr Johnson Neo is a consultant ophthalmic surgeon based at Barts Health NHS Trust, specializing in cornea, external disease, cataract and refractive surgery. He undertook his specialist training in London. During his residency, he also completed a fellowship in population health with the renown King's Fund, and a digital research fellowship with DemDx and Moorfields Eye Hospital, London. He subsequently undertook two years of advanced corneal fellowship at Moorfields Eye Hospital, London, where he was also appointed as chief resident. He is triple board-certified and has received over 30 national and international awards till date in recognition of his achievements in research, teaching, leadership and quality improvement. He is a UK representative to the EyeSustain Global Council, and leads the research committee of the ESCRS Young Ophthalmologist for Sustainability (YOFS) group.